The penny floor was finished 5 years ago but still stands just as perfect. Kelly explained how she achieved that: "The process of making the floor was sorting the pennies, then I caulked each one on the back for a nice adhesion to the existing tile. After I put the last penny down, I waited a few days for the caulking to solidify and then I grouted.

The second problem with the penny challenge is that even making it through the entire year, you're only saving $667 total. That's good for a nice shopping trip and maybe pay off some bills but it's nothing you're going to get that excited about and might not even get motivated enough to start the challenge.. I love the idea of savings challenges though so I thought I would take a shot ...
